GIN & TONIC

80,-

The British cure against malaria. Back in the day quinine was mixed with tonic water as a prophylactic against malaria, however, the British would add Gin to dull the taste. Supposedly it worked.

WHISKEY, WHISKY, SCOTCH (6 cl.)

80,-

Another British influence in India. When whiskey was first introduced, it was a hit amongst the Maharajahs and high society as a luxurious beverage from the West. Soon after, whiskey became a common sight at the dinner table across the subcontinent, which may explain why we speak English in a somewhat amusing manner and are always nodding our heads, "yes sir".

MANGO VODKA

80,-

From India with love.
